Welcome. Register for full free access.

OCTOBER 3, 2011

The Boston Globe

JOHN TLUMACKI/GLOBE STAFF

Boston's oldest firehouse gets a makeover

A ribbon-cutting celebration will be held Wednesday for the renovated Eustis Street station, Boston's oldest firehouse and once a target for demolition.

G COVER

Mind-set over matter

Your attitude has a lot to do with the kind of medical choices you make.

- Are you a believer or a naturalist?
- Book review: 'Your Medical Mind' by Jerome Groopman and Pamela Hartzband

GETTING IN | INSIDE BOSTON'S SCHOOL LOTTERY

Waiting lists frustrate parents

Almost 10,000 Boston students — nearly 18 percent of the student body — are still on waiting lists, trying to get into different schools than they were assigned.

- Photos: While some families wait, others start school
- Video: Chaos during the first week of school

A new toolbox for urban analysis

The field of urban design has long been more of a craft than a science, but new data and tools are beginning to be used.

- Demand for office space heats up

'Occupy Boston' protests continue today

About 100 people were marching this morning, some holding signs that included "capitalism is organized crime" and "where's my golden parachute?" 10.08 a.m.

- Economic protest gains steam

Scott Brown 'not worried' about polls

The first-term US senator sidestepped questions about a recent poll showing him in a statistical tie with potential Democratic opponent Elizabeth Warren.

- Poll suggests Warren, Brown in dead heat
- Tsongas to endorse Warren

CAMPAIGN 2012

Tone turns hostile early for Republican rivals

On a near-daily basis, GOP front-runners Rick Perry and Mitt Romney are charging each other with a variety of wrongs — from devious motives to telling untruths.

- Patrick makes dig at Christie, calling him inexperienced

ON FOOTBALL

Patriots defense now must hold it together

With Jerod Mayo feared gone for a month with a sprained MCL, this defense is about as good as it's going to get.

- Photos: Patriots overpower Raiders
- Raiders revert to their costly ways

> "How are you supposed to choose a school if you don't even know about the schools or where they're located?"
>
> Mariah Williams, on trying to register her son for kindergarten

Most Popular

1. Sitting managers could be in play for Red Sox
2. Run game powers Patriots' win against Raiders
3. Waiting lists frustrate parents
4. Economic protest gains steam
5. Patriots defense now must hold it together

Inside The Boston Globe

Deterring crime on 2 wheels

USER FRIENDLY

Apps track trick-or-treaters

BOOK REVIEW

'Life Itself' by Roger Ebert

MUSIC REVIEW

Mutter and Mozart miss the mark

Columnists

ADRIAN WALKER

Unexpected contender

INNOVATION ECONOMY

Robotic sub brings undersea action into focus

DAN SHAUGHNESSY

Kick in the pants for Red Sox fans

KEVIN CULLEN

Boston teen foretold his own death

Metro

LOTTERY NORTH SOUTH WEST OBITUARIES

Vandals target rainbow banners

Unitarian Universalist parishes decry attacks on their rainbow flags, which long have been used as symbols of inclusion for the gay and lesbian community.

Business

MARKETS TECHNOLOGY

Shoppers forgo loyalty for deals

Extreme couponing shoppers pose a new challenge for retailers.

Nation

POLITICS HEALTH AND WELLNESS

Wall Street protesters show no sign of quitting

The Occupy Wall Street demonstration that started last month with less than a dozen college students has grown and spread to other cities.

World

Syria opposition launches national council

Syrian dissidents formally established a broad-based national council yesterday designed to overthrow President Bashar Assad's regime.

Sports

ON BASEBALL

Sitting managers could be in play for Red Sox

Ozzie Guillen's move from Chicago to Florida may have opened the door for the Red Sox to pursue a sitting manager such as Toronto's John Farrell, their former pitching coach.

Health and wellness

G COVER

Mind-set over matter

Your attitude has a lot to do with the kind of medical choices you make.

Arts

MUSIC REVIEW

Never ask why of They Might Be Giants

They Might Be Giants played everything from kids music to eclectic tunes to their hits at Berklee Performance Center on Saturday.

Magazine

OCT 2, 2011

The science of laughter

Can you dissect a sense of humor? I went to an academic humor conference to find out — and all I got for it was this broken funny bone.

Made in Somerville

Rides not revenge

Opinion

> "Humans were made for Earth, not heaven."
>
> James Carroll

Editorial cartoon: Two-and-a-half candidates

Public burned by solar loans

Our edifice complex

Classes come first, but schools must add more physical activity

Grossman: Dispiriting contributions

Character sketch: Warren Buffett

Ideas

> "To become a citizen of a nation is a choice that involves more sacrifice and pain than tearing down the sculpture of a dictator."
>
> Gal Beckerman, on the challenges facing some Middle Eastern countries

The practical psychopath

Stephen Greenblatt's critical 'Swerve'

When words leave the dictionary

Darwin, the economist

More power, less bagel

© 2011 THE NEW YORK TIMES COMPANY